

Clients & Site Visitors

In light of the current Coronavirus situation in the UK, Quantum are taking a measured approach with proactive procedures put in place to minimise impact to our staff, supply chain and business operations. We are requesting that visits to any of our business locations are only made if required and pre-booked. All non-essential meetings shall be held remotely by video or teleconferencing.

We would ask that you carefully consider any upcoming visits and meetings and discuss any changes with the relevant management team.

We will be contacting attendees to pre-arranged meetings directly to discuss the appointment and would ask that timeslots held for these meetings are retained until further notice.

Should you need to inspect the works for the purposes of Health & Safety or other essential matters please call the site manager who will discuss the visit with you and escort you as necessary.

We do however ask that visitors do not enter site cabins and welfare unless necessary.

Be assured that Quantum are actively working to minimise disruption to our projects and have safety at the core of any actions.

Due to the dynamic nature of this situation, should our policy change we shall communicate this to you in a similar fashion.

Should you have any question or query with regards to this email please contact our office on 01827 65544 or info@quantumconstruction.co.uk